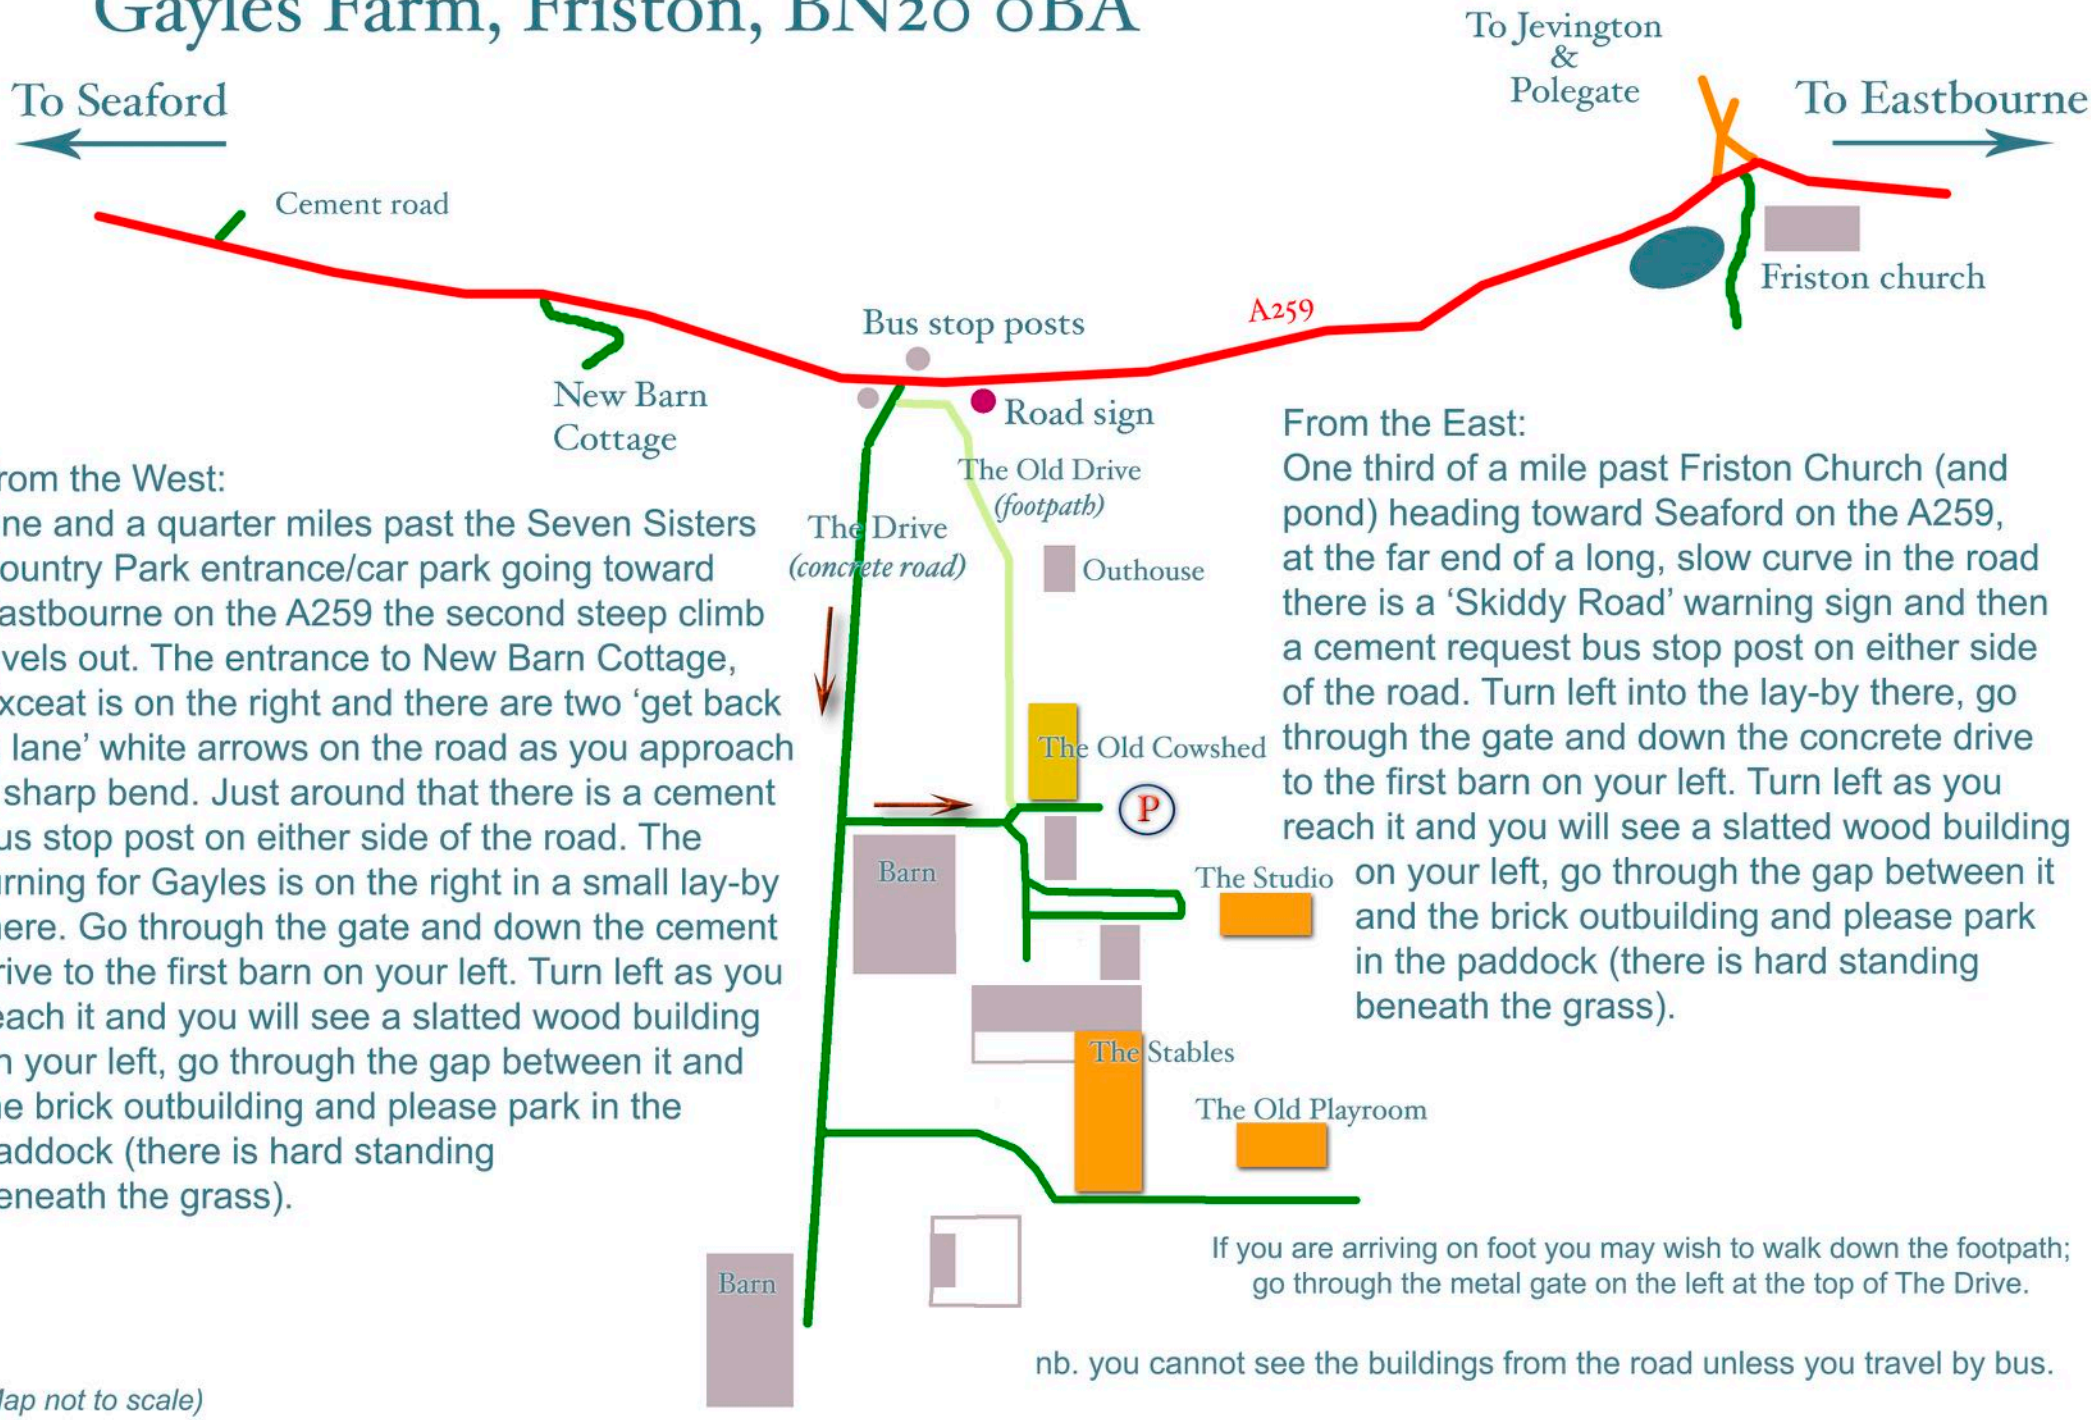
Gayles Farm, Friston, BN20 0BA



From the West:
One and a quarter miles past the Seven Sisters Country Park entrance/car park going toward Eastbourne on the A259 the second steep climb levels out. The entrance to New Barn Cottage, Exceat is on the right and there are two 'get back in lane' white arrows on the road as you approach a sharp bend. Just around that there is a cement bus stop post on either side of the road. The turning for Gayles is on the right in a small lay-by there. Go through the gate and down the cement drive to the first barn on your left. Turn left as you reach it and you will see a slatted wood building on your left, go through the gap between it and the brick outbuilding and please park in the paddock (there is hard standing beneath the grass).

From the East:
One third of a mile past Friston Church (and pond) heading toward Seaford on the A259, at the far end of a long, slow curve in the road there is a 'Skiddy Road' warning sign and then a cement request bus stop post on either side of the road. Turn left into the lay-by there, go through the gate and down the concrete drive to the first barn on your left. Turn left as you reach it and you will see a slatted wood building on your left, go through the gap between it and the brick outbuilding and please park in the paddock (there is hard standing beneath the grass).

If you are arriving on foot you may wish to walk down the footpath; go through the metal gate on the left at the top of The Drive.

nb. you cannot see the buildings from the road unless you travel by bus.
